

0:00:00

We need teachers in primary school. We need to change the profiles of this group of teachers, they are coming from a humanities profile or social profile, maybe science profile, but never from a technology profile. So without passion, it's very difficult to get the commitment of your classroom. So we need to make a push to work with teachers in primary school in order to generate this passion in this community of practice, this group. Because when teachers in primary school, they are passionate by technology, they will introduce this fashion in the classroom and then everything is easy to do, everything is clear and the way is only one, the STEM way.